- (a) which is indebted to the Reserve Bank (whether by virtue of having received assistance from the Troubled Bank Fund or otherwise) is unable to repay its indebtedness to the Reserve Bank; or
- (b) will need to receive public funds in order to prevent systemic risk, that is to say, a risk that a failure on the part of such financial institution to meet its obligations may result in other such financial institutions being unable to meet their respective obligations; or
- (c) has failed to comply or is unlikely to be able to comply with any requirement relating to capital, reserves, assets, liabilities, credits, deposits or other requirement prescribed for the purposes of section 29, 30 or 31 of the Banking Act; or
- (d) is not conducting its business in accordance with sound administrative, accounting, corporate governance or risk management practices and procedures;

the Reserve Bank may direct an inspector to conduct an investigation into the financial institution concerned or any aspect of its management or activities.

(2) Sections 49 to 52 of the Banking Act shall apply in relation to an investigation of a financial institution in terms of subsection (1):

Provided that the Reserve Bank may require the financial institution to submit representations in terms of section 50(3) of the Banking Act within one week after receiving a summary of the inspector’s conclusions and recommendations, if the Reserve Bank considers that urgent action on the inspector’s report may be necessary to prevent irreparable harm to the financial institution or its depositors, creditors or members.

(1) If the Reserve Bank, after considering the report of—

- (a) an inspector following upon an investigation under section 4; or

- (ii) is not conducting its business in accordance with sound administrative, accounting, corporate governance or risk management practices and procedures but may be likely to do so if any person holding shares in the financial institution relinquishes his or her shareholding;

or

(e) any shareholder of the investigated financial institution is not qualified in terms of the Banking Act to hold such shares;

the Reserve Bank may authorise the inspector or investigator, as the case may be—

(f) in the case of a finding under paragraph (c), to undertake a valuation of the assets and liabilities of the financial institution in order to determine its net asset value, and section 15 shall apply to such valuation; or

(g) to issue a written direction to any shareholder referred to in paragraph (d)(i) or (ii) or (e)—

(2) A person to whom a notice has been issued in terms of subsection (1)(f), (g) or (h) may, within fourteen days of receiving such notice, apply to the High Court to set it aside on the grounds that he or she—

- (a) is not responsible for the financial institution's failure to—
 - (i) comply with any requirement referred to in subsection (1)(d)(i); or
 - (ii) conduct its business in accordance with the practices and procedures referred to in subsection (1)(d)(ii);

(1) If the Reserve Bank, after considering the report of—

- (b) a supervisor following upon an investigation under section 47 of the Banking Act; is satisfied that the financial institution which is the subject of the report—

Provided that, where the Reserve Bank considers that immediate action is necessary to prevent the disposal of any of the financial institution's assets or any other actual or potential prejudice to the institution's members, creditors, depositors or employees, the Reserve Bank may take such action before affording the institution an opportunity to make representations in terms of this subsection, in which event it shall as soon as possible thereafter afford the chairperson of the institution's board and the institution's chief executive officer a reasonable opportunity to make representations, and for that purpose the administrator shall afford them reasonable access to the institution's books and records.

(5) A single declaration may be made in respect of two or more troubled financial institutions, in which event a single administrator shall be appointed over every troubled financial institution named in the declaration.

(6) As soon as possible after issuing a declaration in terms of subsection (1), the Reserve Bank shall cause it to be published by notice in the Gazette and in one or more issues of a newspaper circulating in the area in which the financial institution concerned principally conducts its business.

(7) A declaration shall have effect—

- (a) as soon as it is delivered to the chief executive officer of the financial institution concerned or to a member of the institution's board; or
- (b) on the date on which it is published in the Gazette;

whichever is the earlier.

(8) The Reserve Bank may by notice published in the Gazette at any time amend or revoke a declaration, and section 8(2), (3) and (4) shall apply, with necessary changes, to such a notice.

- (c) nullifying every disposition of the property, including rights of action, of the troubled financial institution and every transfer of shares or alteration in the status of its members, made after the commencement of the administration, unless the administrator otherwise orders; and
- (d) suspending the operation of any set-off by the troubled financial institution in respect of any amount owing by a creditor of the institution; and
- (e) suspending all rights of action against the troubled financial institution and every action or proceeding commenced against the institution except by leave of the administrator and subject to such terms as the administrator may impose; and
- (f) vacating any attachment or execution put in force against the assets of the troubled financial institution after the commencement of the administration; and
- (g) suspending any lien held by any financial institution or other person over the property of the troubled financial institution except a lien held by the Reserve Bank or by a payment system recognised by the Reserve Bank in terms of section 3(1) of the National Payment Systems Act [Chapter 24:22].

8 Transmission of declaration to certain officers

(1) The administrator shall, within seven days of the commencement of the administration, transmit a copy of the declaration and of every notice amending or setting aside the same to the Registrar, Master and Sheriff and—

- (a) in respect of any immovable property within Zimbabwe which appears to be an asset of the troubled financial institution, to the Registrar of Deeds; and

(c) in respect of any account with another financial institution known by the administrator to be operated by the troubled financial institution, to the chief executive officer of every such institution.

(2) Upon receipt by the Registrar of Deeds of a copy of a declaration he or she shall enter a caveat against the transfer of any immovable property or the cancellation or cession of any bond registered in the name of or belonging to the troubled financial institution.

(3) Every such public officer concerned shall register every copy of a declaration transmitted to him or her and note thereon the day and hour when it is received.

(4) Upon receipt of a copy of a declaration by the chief executive officer of a financial institution under subsection (1)(c), the chief executive officer shall cause such account to be immediately frozen.

9 Confirmation of declaration

(1) No later than thirty days (or such longer period as a judge referred to in this section may allow) after a declaration takes effect under section 6(7), the Reserve Bank shall, by application made by the Reserve Bank or on its behalf, seek an order confirming the declaration from a judge in chambers on not less than fourteen days' written notice (accompanied by the documentation in support of the application referred to in subsection (2)(a) and (b)) to the shareholders, creditors and former members of the board of the troubled financial institution:

Provided that the publication by or on behalf of the Reserve Bank of a notice in the Gazette to shareholders, creditors and former members of the board (whether named individually or by class) notifying them of the intention of the Reserve Bank to make such an application not earlier than ten days from the date of publication of the notice in the Gazette, and in one or more issues of a newspaper circulating in the area in which the financial institution concerned principally conducts its business, and containing particulars of where the documentation in support of the application referred to in subsection (2)(a) and (b) may be collected by any party interested in the application, shall be deemed to constitute sufficient service of the notice of the application upon any such party.

- (a) a copy of the declaration relating to the troubled financial institution which is the subject of the application; and

 - (c) proof that the shareholders, creditors and former members of the board of the troubled financial institution have been served with or notified of the application under subsection (1).
- (3) A judge before whom an application is made under subsection (1) may—
- (a) grant an order confirming a declaration unconditionally or subject to any amendment or variation; or
 - (b) set aside a declaration and give such directions as may be necessary to reverse any of the effects of the declaration.

(4) A decision by a judge not to issue a confirming order in terms of subsection (1), or to issue it subject to any amendment or variation, shall not prevent the Reserve Bank from making a fresh application in terms of that subsection on the basis of new evidence obtained since the original application, or to correct any mistake in the original application, and subsections (1) and (2) shall apply to such fresh application.

(5) The Reserve Bank may appeal to the Supreme Court against any setting aside or amendment or variation of a declaration under subsection (3), and where such appeal is made the declaration shall continue to have effect until the appeal is determined.

13 Voidable dispositions of property by troubled financial institutions and specified persons

(1) If an administrator has reasonable grounds for believing that a troubled financial institution or specified person has made any disposition of the property of such institution or of his or her own property, as the case may be, in collusion with another person for the purpose of securing that property against sequestration in the course of insolvency or administration proceedings, the administrator may, on not less than fourteen days’ written notice to the person in whose favour the disposition was made, apply to a magistrate or judge in chambers (depending on which court has jurisdiction in the matter) for an order setting aside such disposition and causing such property to be delivered to the administrator.

(2) A disposition shall not be set aside in terms of subsection (1) if the person in whose favour the disposition was made proves that the disposition was not collusive but made in the ordinary course of business without the intention of securing that property against sequestration in the course of insolvency or administration proceedings.

(3) For the avoidance of doubt it is declared that no criminal conviction for an offence under section 41 is required in order for the administrator to take action under this section.

14 Statement of troubled financial institution’s affairs

(1) The administrator shall make and submit to the Reserve Bank a statement, as at the commencement of the administration or such other convenient date as the Reserve Bank may allow—

- (a) showing the particulars of the troubled financial institution’s assets, debts and liabilities (including its share capital as valued or revalued in accordance with section 15), the names, addresses and occupations of its creditors, the securities held by them respectively, the dates when the securities were respectively given and such further or other information as the Reserve Bank may require; and
- (b) identifying, subject to section 18, any past or present director or officer of the troubled financial institution or other person who it appears to the administrator was knowingly a party to the carrying on of the business of the institution in the manner or circumstances referred to in section 18(1), and indicating the extent, if ascertainable, to which any such person may be held liable for the debts and other liabilities of the institution:

Provided that if it is not possible to ascertain the extent to which any such person is so liable, it shall be presumed, unless the contrary is shown in any application referred to in subsection (7), that every such person is personally responsible, without limitation of liability, for all the debts and liabilities of the company;

- (c) determining, if possible, whether any share, right, or interest in or claim upon the troubled financial institution that is purported to be held by a person referred to in paragraph (b) was obtained by or resulted from any fraud committed by such person in relation to the institution:

Provided that, for the avoidance of doubt, it is declared that no criminal conviction for fraud is required in order for the administrator to make a finding of fraud under this paragraph.

(2) The part of the statement relating to the matters referred to in subsection (1)(a) shall be submitted and verified by affidavit by one or more of the persons who are at the relevant date the directors and by the person who is at that date the secretary of the troubled financial institution or by such of the persons hereinafter in this subsection mentioned as the administrator may require to submit and verify the statement, that is to say, persons—

- (a) who are or have been officers of the institution;
- (b) who have taken part in the formation of the institution at any time within one year before the relevant date;

PART VI

GENERAL

32 Arbitration where valuation of shares, etc. by administrator or Reserve Bank disputed

(1) Whenever any director, officer, member or creditor of a financial institution or any other interested person (including a specified person) takes issue with the valuation placed on any share, right, claim, interest or asset of the institution by an administrator or the Reserve Bank in terms of section 5, 15, 20(3)(a) or (b) or 25(1)(b), (c) or (d), such person shall object to the valuation in writing to the administrator or the Reserve Bank, as the case may be, within a reasonable or prescribed period after it is made.

(2) Upon receiving an objection under subsection (1) the administrator or the Reserve Bank, as the case may be, shall attempt to resolve the objection by negotiation with the objector and, if he or she is unable to resolve it within a reasonable time, shall submit the objection to arbitration in terms of the Arbitration Act [Chapter 7:15]:

Provided that the administrator or Reserve Bank shall not entertain any objection under this section by a person who claims to be the creditor of a troubled financial institution unless he or she has proved his or her claim against the troubled financial institution under section 16 or, if the proposed valuation occurs before claims against the institution are proved under that section, the person provisionally proves his or her claim to the satisfaction of the administrator or Reserve Bank, as the case may be.

33 Persons employed by troubled financial institution before its administration

To the extent that it is possible to do so without prejudicing the viability of the troubled financial institution or the successor financial institution, the administrator and interim board shall endeavour to retain in employment every person, other than a specified person, employed by the institution immediately before the commencement of its administration on terms not less favourable than those enjoyed by him or her immediately prior to the commencement of the administration.

34 Application of assets during administration

(1) The administrator or interim board shall not, without the leave of the Reserve Bank, sell or otherwise dispose of any of the assets of a troubled financial institution or successor financial institution except in the ordinary course of the institution's business.

(2) Any moneys of the troubled financial institution which become available to the administrator or an interim board shall be applied by the administrator or interim board towards—

- (a) paying the costs of the administration; and
- (b) conducting the institution's business in accordance with the declaration or scheme of resolution; and
- (c) so far as circumstances permit, paying the claims of creditors which arose before the commencement of the administration.

(3) The costs of the administration and the claims of creditors of the troubled financial institution shall be paid in accordance with the law relating to insolvency as if those costs were costs of the sequestration of an estate and those claims were claims against an insolvent estate.

35 Remuneration of administrator and assistant administrators

(1) An administrator and any assistant administrator shall be entitled to such reasonable remuneration for their services as may be fixed by the Reserve Bank from time to time.

(2) In fixing the remuneration of an administrator or assistant administrator in terms of subsection (1), the Reserve Bank shall take into account the manner in which the administrator or assistant administrator has performed his or her functions and any recommendation by the members or creditors of the troubled financial institution relating to such remuneration.

36 Liabilities incurred by administrator and interim board to have preference over pre-administration liabilities

(1) All liabilities incurred or to be incurred by the administrator or interim board in the conduct of the troubled or successor financial institution's business shall be paid in preference to all other liabilities not already discharged, exclusive of the costs of the administration, and thereupon all claims based upon such first-mentioned liabilities shall have preference in the order in which they were incurred over all unsecured claims against the institution except claims arising out of the costs of the administration.

(2) If a declaration is superseded by a winding-up order—

- (a) the preference conferred in terms of subsection (1) shall remain in force except in so far as claims arising out of costs of the winding up are concerned; and
- (b) all claims based on such liabilities incurred by the administrator or interim board shall be taken to have been proved, and section 220 of the Companies Act shall not apply in respect thereof.

37 Period of administration excluded in determining preference under mortgage bond

The time during which any troubled financial institution, which is a debtor under a mortgage bond, is subject to administration, shall be excluded from the calculation of any period for the purpose of determining whether the mortgage confers any preference in terms of section 111(3) of the Insolvency Act [Chapter 6:04] as applied to the winding up of companies by the Companies Act.

38 Position of auditor during administration

Notwithstanding the issue of a declaration in respect of any troubled financial institution and for so long as the declaration is in force, the provisions of the Banking Act or Companies Act relating to the appointment and reappointment of an auditor and the rights and duties of an auditor shall continue to apply as if any reference in those provisions to the directors of the troubled financial institution were a reference to the administrator.

39 Administration expenses

(1) The expenses of the administration of a troubled financial institution (hereinafter in this section referred to as “administration expenses”), including in particular the remuneration of the administrator and any assistant administrator, shall be defrayed in the first instance by the troubled financial institution, but every specified person shall, to the extent mentioned in subsection (2), be liable to repay the institution for administration expenses.

(2) Every specified person shall be liable for administration expenses to the extent of fifty per centum of the amount of the debts and other liabilities of the troubled financial institution for which such person is liable, or, if the liability of such person is unlimited, to the extent of fifty per centum of the amount of the administration expenses:

Provided that if the amount due from all specified persons for administration expenses exceeds the actual amount of administration expenses, the amount due from each specified person shall be prorated accordingly.

40 Cancellation of declaration

(1) If at any time the administrator notifies the Reserve Bank in writing that the purpose of the declaration has been fulfilled or that for any reason it is undesirable that the declaration should remain in force, the Reserve Bank may, by notice published in the Gazette, cancel the declaration and thereupon the administrator shall be divested of his or her functions.

(2) In cancelling any declaration the Reserve Bank may (insofar as these matters have not been provided for under a scheme of resolution relating to the troubled financial institution) give such directions as may be necessary for the resumption of the management and control of the institution by the officers thereof, including directions for the convening of a general meeting of members for the purpose of electing directors of the institution.

(3) Upon the cancellation of a declaration any action or proceeding commenced against the financial institution concerned at the time when the declaration was issued, or right of action held against the institution at that time, shall be revived or may be recommenced, as may be appropriate.

41 Offences consequent upon administration

(1) Where a troubled financial institution is under administration, every person shall be guilty of an offence and liable to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three years who, at any time within the six months immediately preceding the commencement of the administration, and while being an officer of the institution, does any of the following acts, unless he or she satisfies the court, in each case, that he or she had no intention to defraud, namely, every person who—

- (a) conceals, destroys, alters, falsifies or obliterates, or is privy to the concealment, destruction, mutilation or falsification, of any book or document relating to the property or affairs of the troubled financial institution or makes or is privy to the making of any false entry in any such book or document; or

(3) Where a troubled financial institution is under administration, every person shall be guilty of an offence and liable to imprisonment for a period not exceeding three years who, within the twelve months immediately preceding the commencement of the administration and while being an officer of the institution, acts as follows, unless he or she satisfies the court that he or she had no intention to defraud, namely, every such person who, when making any statement either verbally or in writing in regard to the business or affairs of the institution and for the information of its creditors or of any person who became its creditor on the faith of such a statement, conceals any liability, present or future, certain or contingent, which the institution may then have contracted or mentions, as if it were an asset of the institution, any right or property which, at the time, is not an asset or in any way conceals or disguises or attempts to conceal or disguise any loss which the institution has sustained or gives any incorrect account thereof, unless he or she satisfies the court that he or she had no intent to defraud.

- (a) causes or knowingly permits an undue preference as defined by the Insolvency Act [Chapter 6:04] to be given by the institution; or
- (b) causes or knowingly permits any debt or debts to the aggregate amount of one hundred thousand dollars or upwards to be contracted by the institution without any reasonable expectation that the institution will be able to discharge the same and the institution thereafter, being still a debtor for the said debt or debts, is subjected to administration.

(5) Every person shall be guilty of an offence and liable to imprisonment for a period not exceeding two years who, while being a director, secretary or officer of a troubled financial institution and at any time during the administration of the institution—

(6) Every person shall be guilty of an offence and liable to imprisonment for a period not exceeding one year who, while being a director, secretary or officer of a troubled financial institution and at any time during the administration of the institution, grants, promises or offers any consideration in order to induce any person to refrain from the investigation of the affairs of the institution or from the prosecution on a criminal charge of any officer of the institution or of any person with whom the institution may have had business relations.

(7) Where a troubled financial institution is under administration, every person shall be guilty of an offence and liable to imprisonment for a period not exceeding six months who, while being a director, secretary or officer of the institution and being under examination at a meeting and being thereto required by the administrator or any creditor or member or their respective agents, fails to account for or to disclose what has become of any of the property of the institution which is proved to have been in his or her possession or, to his or her knowledge, in the possession of the institution so recently before the commencement of the administration that in the ordinary course he or she ought to be able to account for the same.

(8) For the purposes of subsections (5), (6) and (7), a person who is a director, secretary or officer of a financial institution at the commencement of the administration thereof shall be deemed to be a director, secretary or officer during the administration thereof notwithstanding that his or her duties may have ceased or that he or she is no longer gainfully employed by the institution or by its administrator on its behalf.

(9) Any person who falsely holds himself or herself out to be an administrator, assistant administrator or a member of an interim board shall be guilty of an offence and liable to a fine not exceeding level ten or to imprisonment for a period not exceeding five years or to both such fine and such imprisonment.
